CLASS BLOG FERPA CONSENT

Course Name:_____

Faculty Name:_____

The Family Education Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) is a federal law that protects the privacy of student education records, including academic records. For the student's protection, FERPA generally limits release of student education records without the student's written consent.

The faculty member in the above-referenced course intends to: (1) create/maintain a group blog which may contain content created by me; and/or (2) require me to create my own personal blog. The faculty member intends for the blog(s) to be publicly accessible. By signing below, I consent to allowing the blog and my content to be publicly accessible.

I understand that I am not required to provide this consent. I understand that this release remains in effect unless I revoke such consent in writing and the revocation is delivered to Miami University.
